Organization's Primary Exempt Purpose

Universities Allied for Essential Medicines (UAEM) is a coalition of students at 60 top research institutions across the United States, Canada, Germany and the United Kingdom. UAEM's mission is to promote access to medicines for people in developing countries by changing norms and practices around university patenting and licensing, ensuring that university medical research meets the needs of the majority of the world's population, and by empowering students to respond to the access and innovation crisis.

Statement 7
Form 990-EZ, Part III, Line 28
Statement of Program Service Accomplishments

International Public Health/International Health P: Access Initiative: Worked to create and pilot (results in 2010) new metrics to measure university policies based on access to medicines criteria with input from NIH and a wide variety of civil society and university technology transfer offices. Successfully petitioned to add medicine (omeprazole) to WHO Model List of Essential Medicines to improve availability in poor countries and journals published significant papers by UAEM students on the role of universities in global health. Catalyzed by UAEM, University of Edinburgh adopted a Global Access policy to make medicines discovered there available at low cost in developing countries. Later in the year, in response to UAEM activism, 13 institutions including the Association of University Technology Managers, Harvard University, Yale University, Boston University, the National Institutes of Health, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, Duke University, Brown University, University of Pennsylvania, Oregon Health & Science University, University of Illinois Chicago, University of Illinois Urbana-Champaign, and University of Vermont and State Agricultural College adopted global access policies. As of the end of 2009, in response to UAEM activism, a total of 19 universities have adopted access policies. (19 current access policies)

International Public Health/International Health P: Empowerment Initiative. In 2009, campuses across the United States, Canada, Germany and the United Kingdom participated in UAEMs Global Access to Medicines Day activities, drawing attention to the importance of access to medicines across UAEM chapters in the US, Canada and the UK. We held our annual conference at Yale University, drawing more than 200 students from 7 countries who left with a rigorous introduction to global health and intellectual property issues, as well as leadership and activism skills. Through coordinated action in the United Kingdom and Germany, chapters are now widespread in both countries and took root in Norway. UAEM now has over 60 chapters in five countries. Further, students have been trained in non-profit management through training received serving on UAEM's board of directors and numerous other students have gained professional experience through leading initiatives involving industry, university administrators and governments. (Over 200 trained in campus activism)

Form 990-EZ, Part III, Line 30
Statement of Program Service Accomplishments

Medical Specialties Research: Innovation Initiative: Participated in discussions on development of prize fund mechanisms as innovative mechanisms to drive drug development resulting in low-cost medicines. Held conference on UNITAID patent pool which gathered the vast majority of medicine patent holders needed in the pool together with WHO officials and other crucial to its implementation. Developed a curriculum on neglected diseases to educate healthcare workers in the critical importance of addressing these diseases. Partnered with other NGOs in raising awareness of Chagas diseases in connection with the 100th anniversary of its discovery in order to create push for new treatments. (Patent pool meeting created space for important strategizing on making the pool successful)
